Although it is impossible to determine who was the first hero to exist, it is possible to conclude that they have been around since the beginning of civilization. They've been called sorcerers, magicians, clairvoyants - depending on the era.

It is believed that modern-day heroes were originally derived from the Second World War's "Super Soldier Project."

Competition for the development of heroes rapidly accelerated due to the following Cold War between America and the Soviet Union.

Subsequently, the hero system was established.

However...

Wait.

Get over here. Now.

Does it hurt?

N-No...

Sung-tae.

Yeah?

These days,

have you remembered anything new?
